

VOLUME 28
ERRATA

Page 595, first line. Read “There are generally three potential forums . . .”

Page 596, footnote 7, fourth line. For “following,” read “filing.”

Page 598, eighth line. For “migration,” read “mitigation.”

Page 599, footnote 20, seventh line. Delete sentence beginning “Accordingly. . .”

Page 623, footnote 170, third line. For “1109,” read “1109 n.”

The Arizona Law Review dedicates this special page to the Marks Memorial Lecture series. The Marks Memorial Lectures were established in 1979 to enrich the curriculum of the University of Arizona College of Law. The Lectures bring to the College the scholarship and learning of eminent persons in various fields of law. Each year, the Review publishes essays based upon the lectures. The most recent essay published from a Marks Lecture was by Professor Frances Allen, found in volume 29, issue 3.

