

Journal of Ancient Egyptian Interconnections

Editorial Announcements

The current fascicle of the journal is the second of a two-part special issue (JAEl 4:2 and 4:3) devoted to the specific theme of Egyptian interconnections with the cultures of the ancient Levant. This second fascicle carries articles by the following scholars: Susan Cohen, Montana State University; Orly Goldwasser, Hebrew University, Jerusalem; Mary Ownby, University of Arizona; Bernd Schipper, Humboldt-Universität, Berlin. Unfortunately, planned articles by our colleagues Ezra Markus of Haifa University and Karin Sowada of Macquarie University could not be completed in time for the special issue, but will hopefully appear in a future issue of JAEl.

Together, the two fascicles of this special issue not only span a great deal of material in the area of Levantine connections, but also cover important current research being carried out at the threshold of our knowledge of ancient Egypt's relations with its Near Eastern neighbors.

We take this opportunity to remind our professional readers that the winter (December) issue of the journal will see a new development for JAEl, and that the fourth issue of 2012, JAEl 4:4, will contain short reports and updates from scholars whose research and fieldwork reveal connections between ancient Egypt and its neighbors. These short updates of recent and in-progress work will provide researchers an opportunity to share "news" of what is being worked on, where, and by whom. The updates will range from summaries of recent archaeological field seasons with relevant finds to the announcement of recent or forthcoming publications, conferences, etc. - anything that will help scholars and students of the area of Egyptian interconnections to stay updated. Scholars are thus invited to submit a short report on their work (up to 500 words) to the journal by October 1, 2012. Scholars wishing to contribute material to the reports issue are asked to consult the "Guide for Contributors" (which can be downloaded from the link in the Table of Contents of this issue) or to send an email to JAEl@egypt.arizona.edu for further information.
